URGENT — ADA Accommodation Failure + Unresolved Auto-Owners Claim — Email Response Required

DJ,

I'm a policyholder through your agency. Angie Fitzgerald has been handling my Auto-Owners claim. I'm writing to you directly as agency owner because the situation has not been resolved and has now expanded to include your agency.

I am a 100% disabled veteran. I require email-only communication as a reasonable accommodation under the ADA. This has been communicated to Angie and is documented. Every attempt to reach your office today went to voicemail. That's the problem I'm writing about.

Here's where things stand:

THE CLAIM

On January 28, 2026, I was stranded on a highway in -3°F weather for over 165 minutes after Auto-Owners' roadside assistance failed. No claim number was set up. The response offered was $25 for a taxi receipt. Auto-Owners corporate has never contacted me directly despite Angie confirming on January 30th that she forwarded my demand and asked them to reach out. It has now been 14 days of silence from the carrier.

ANGIE'S ROLE

Angie has been professional but she has no settlement authority. Your own carrier's Agency Terms of Use classify you as independent contractors. She can forward — and she did — but she cannot resolve this. That's Auto-Owners' responsibility, and they have refused to engage.

ADA VIOLATIONS — AUTO-OWNERS

- Published legal@ and claims@ email addresses that reject inbound mail
- Primary contact is a phone system requiring 30+ minutes to reach a human
- ADA accommodation line is itself a phone number
- Customer portal requires login to access emergency services, claims, or agent contact
- Mobile app has documented crashes and login failures
- No email-based claims process exists
- No pre-login emergency access exists
- My formal ADA accommodation request for email-only communication has been ignored

ADA VIOLATIONS — NORTH INSURANCE GROUP

- Your office phone goes to voicemail with no email alternative offered
- Your agency represents 24 carriers but provides only one phone number across two locations
- No email-based intake or communication path is published for disability accommodation
- I cannot reach you by phone. That is not a preference — it is a disability accommodation requirement. Your voicemail system does not satisfy ADA obligations when the policyholder has documented the need for written communication.

This means both you and Auto-Owners are in the same position: failing to provide accessible communication to a disabled veteran policyholder. You are not separate from this problem. You are part of the chain that has left me without a functional path to resolve my claim.

WHAT I NEED

1. An email response from you within 24 hours acknowledging this communication
2. Confirmation that you will engage with me via email as my ADA accommodation requires

3. A direct email contact at Auto-Owners claims who can discuss my file — not a phone number
4. Your position as agency owner on why your policyholder has been left without resolution for two weeks after a life-threatening roadside failure

I am not asking to be called back. I am asking to be emailed back. That is the accommodation. The voicemail I left today should not have been necessary in the first place.

David,

RE: CLAIM NUMBER: 30000732832026

Thank you for the email. First off, we have no missed calls or voicemails from you today. Secondly, our office has done nothing wrong and have been trying to help you as best we can – we can not decide the outcome of claims.

I have reviewed the notes and Angie has informed me of your situation and has helped as best she can and has been very informative and helpful to you. You are correct, our agency does not have authority to make decisions on claims, the issue you have will have to be resolved with AutoOwners directly. I have CC'd their email here for you to reach out.

Since you are are unable to accept phone calls, please also try to use your online application or online account to attempt to connect with someone further at AutoOwners. Roadside service claims are typically not assigned to a specific person or adjustor - The only email we have is quickclaims.clm@aoins.com for you to attempt to get ahold of someone to help with your issue. In the meantime, I will do my best to see if I can get a quick claim manager's contact information to try and connect with you.

All my best,

DJ Clark
